The Stephanie Alexander Program has finally started to take shape. We had a HUGE delivery of good quality soil from David and Linda Campbell on Friday, followed by a couple of fantastic raised garden beds from Wags! During our first whole-school lesson, students got into Tribes groups to create their posters and become familiar with their team mates. These Tribes groups will be the groups the students work in for the remainder of the year during cooking and gardening classes.

First up, students will be gaining their wheelbarrow licenses so that they can start filling the garden beds! If you have any old wheelbarrows or shovels that you would like to donate, or we could borrow for the next few weeks, we would greatly appreciate it!

Over the next few weeks, students will be completing activities both in the garden and kitchen, learning basic skills and use of equipment. The groups will be split in half, with one group gardening and one cooking each week, and then alternating the following week. Students will be recording the process of creating a beautiful garden and kitchen space, along with any activities in their journal each week.
